Article no. 4

- ♦ Article 4 of the Constitution concerns the states.
 - ♦ Section 1: mandates that all states will honor the laws of all other states; this ensures, that for example, if a couple married in Florida is also considered married in Arizona, or that someone convicted of a crime in Virginia is considered guilty by Wyoming.
 - ♦ Section 2: Guarantees that citizens of one state be treated equally and fairly like all citizens of another. It also says that if a person accused of a crime in one other state flees to another, they will be returned to the state they fled from. This section also has a clause dealing with fugitive slaves that no longer applies.
 - ♦ Section 3: concerns the admittance of new states and the control of federal lands.
 - ♦ Section 4: Ensures a republican form of government (representative democracy" and both of which are opposed to a monarchical or aristocratic scheme- the states derives its power from the people, not from a king or gentry, and guarantees that the federal government will protect the states against invasion and insurrection.

Article 4 of the Constitution

17.4.3

As part of its emergency regulations, a State may establish special or emergency courts for cases involving unprivileged belligerents or other persons suspected of committing offenses related to the non-international armed conflict.

Such courts must be regularly constituted and afford all the judicial guarantees that are recognized as indispensable by civilized peoples.⁸⁴ Such courts may distinguish based on nationality.⁸⁵ The procedures of such courts may deviate from those applicable during ordinary Proclamation of martial law was the only provision in case of disturbances endangering the security of the state. It would have entailed handing over all powers to the military authority and suspending private and public liberties.

Government and Parliament considered this step too extreme. Hence they devised a new contingency, the so-called 'state of emergency.'

The government in turn gave authority to regulate movements of persons and goods, assign places of residence, create forbidden zones, order searches, ban meetings, control the press, dissolve associations, collect reparations for willful damage and for aid given to the rebels, suspend or transfer civil servants, deprive elected representatives of their seats, postpone by-elections, and delegate certain civil powers to the military.

("No country which relies on the law of the land to regulate the lives of its citizens can afford to see that law flouted by its own government, even in an insurgency situation. In other words everything done by a government and its agents in combating insurgency must be legal. But this does not mean that the government must work within exactly the same set of laws during an insurgency as existed beforehand, because it is a function of a government when necessary. It does not mean that the law must be administered in exactly the same way during an uprising as it was in more peaceful times, because once again a government has the power to modify the way in which the law is administered if necessary, for the well being of the people, although the exercise of such power is usually – and rightly – subject to considerable constitutional restraint.").

Constitution of the United States Fourteenth Amendment Section 3

No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President and Vice-President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath, as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.
